

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A system and method is described for transcribing a recorded message automatically from a voicemail message system or an answering machine. The designated message may be automatically transcribed and forwarded to various archival devices, such as a printer, a facsimile machine, computer memory storage, or email. Thus, the system and method of the present invention automates the transcription process of a recorded message eliminating the need for a person to transcribe the message.

Document #: 1144874 v.1